

The University of New Mexico
Master of Public Health Program

Invites you to join our workshop on

Winning Big Through Health Partnerships

A hands-on community and academic research forum

Friday, April 30, 2010 8:45 A.M. – 5:30 P.M.
University of New Mexico Student Union Building

- Opportunity for bi-directional learning and hands-on activities to increase skills in culturally-centered research and partnering
- Facilitated discussions among community and academic research partners, educators, and activists involved in community participatory research
- Excellent opportunity to share lessons learned and influence best practices

Featuring Keynote Speakers:

Lynn Blanchard, PhD, MPH, Director of the Carolina Center for Public Service at the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill, international expert on Community Participatory Research and co-director of Faculty for the Engaged Campus, an initiative of Community-Campus Partnership for Health. Her interests center on public service and how people work together to address issues of shared concern.

Kalvin White, PhD, leader in Diné Science, Math, and Technology in the Department of Diné Education, and a member of the Navajo Nation Institutional Review Board. Dr. White is an expert in culturally relevant evaluation techniques and bridging Indigenous and Western psychology methods to address Native American mental health, education and research issues.

For a complete schedule visit our Web site at:

http://www.atpm.org/prof_dev/community10_new_mexico.html

Registration Fees $15 Community Member, $50 APTR Member, $95 non-Member. $115 Scholarships for registration and travel for Community Members are available. Lunch provided. Abstract for poster session due April 15, 2010.

UNM Master of Public Health Program

Co-sponsors: The Center for Participatory Research, The Center for Native American Health, RWJF-UNM Center for Health Policy, and the UNM Department of Family and Community Medicine

For additional information contact Noell Stone ssstone@salud.unm.edu